Just one quick word, to say: good meeting, process can start. We will have in Brussels the Foreign Affairs Council on Monday where I will report to all 28 Foreign Ministers about discussions we had here and the decisions taken. The European Union will play its part on all the decisions that were taken today, being it on the opposition groups, being it on the government side, being it on the counter-terrorism work and humanitarian. I would not anticipate decisions that will be announced by Secretary Kerry and the others but, I would say, the process can definitely start.
