Warplanes of the Russian invaders continue to commit crimes against civilians in Syria. Several massacres were committed in different parts of Deir Ezzor and its countryside on Thursday, especially in the town of Mayadin as well as the villages of Buqroun, Tabiya, and Jusaida Bakkara claiming the lives of at least 50 civilians.

More victims are being reported and more crimes are also being committed on almost daily basis by jets of the international anti-ISIS coalition forces. Credible reports indicated that nearly 100 civilians, mostly women and children, were killed in suspected airstrikes by the international anti-ISIS coalition forces.

The Syrian Coalition condemns these crimes as it calls on the international anti-coalition to reveal their details and launch an urgent investigation into these attacks. It is imperative that the international coalition shoulder its responsibilities, especially as the airstrikes it is conducting in Syria are repeatedly causing civilian casualties without them prompting any reassessment or accountability.

The Coalition reiterates its condemnation of all attacks targeting Syrian civilians. Those responsible for such violations along with the international community should remain aware that such attacks constitute war crimes and violate international law. Keeping silent towards such crimes is unacceptable and shameful and is the main reason behind their continuation.
