The AGPS assured in a Human Rights Report that more than one-third of the Palestinian Syrian refugees living in Syria, who count around half million, were displaced towards out of Syria, due to the war and targeting their homes by shelling and siege or clashes, causing dispersing them to almost all continents across the world.

This issue will be discussed in details in its next report entitled "Palestinians of Syria.. Refugees across life milestones".

It is mentioned that, more than 71.200 refugees have already arrived Europe as all of the neighbouring countries didn't allow them to take refuge, adding that "the report will shed light on all aspects of this issue in terms of human rights conditions, and will go deep into indicators of population, economy, and human rights violations".
