Motion for a resolution

Paragraph 23 a (new)

Motion for a resolution

Amendment

23a. Regrets the overall destabilising role of Turkey, and it is extremely concerned by, and strongly condemns, the continuing and repeated threats of military action against EU Member States, notably Greece and Cyprus, by Turkey in the Eastern Mediterranean and the continuing of illegal activities within Cypriot and Greek maritime zones; Deplores the fact that despite the efforts for de-escalation and dialogue, Turkey continues its unilateral provocative actions, violating international law and the sovereign rights of EU Member States in the area; Calls for the European Council and the Member States to take all appropriate actions, including the imposition of sanctions, such as to halt any export of military equipment to Turkey;

Özlem Demirel, Mick Wallace

Motion for a resolution
Paragraph 23 a (new)

Motion for a resolution

Amendment

23a. Notes that the Indo-Pacific is currently developing into the world's most important economic area; therefore calls all the more for diplomatic initiatives to be adopted instead of developing military approaches, as with the EU Indo-Pacific Strategy; stresses that military action will only further escalate the dangerous arms spiral with China; notes that Chinese territorial claims are rejected and justified by protection of the so-called 'rules-based order'; recalls in this regard that the UK, with US support and EU endorsement, is also clearly violating the so-called 'rules-based order' and international law in the same region with the 'Diego Garcia' military base;

Amendment

- 39a. Takes note of joint efforts of some Member States to develop essential future capabilities outside the EU framework,* notably the Future Combat Air System (FCAS) and the Main Ground Combat System (MGCS); highlights that these projects are important for strengthening European military capabilities in general; highlights that the results of the first Coordinated Annual Review on Defence (CARD) identified modernisation and acquisition of main battle tank systems as a focus area for cooperation; recommends to the respective Member States to explore additional cooperation and funding possibilities on the European level, most notably the EDF, in order to make full use of the European defence industries' innovative potential and achieve a higher level of economies of scale; considers in that context the TEMPEST project led by the United Kingdom in which also EU Member States participate as an unnecessary duplication to FCAS and therefore encourages the states participating in both projects to combine both projects in order to achieve economies of scale as well as to ensure interoperability between the EU and the UK; stresses in that context the necessity for close cooperation between the EU and the UK in matters of security and defence;

Paragraph 48 a (new)

Motion for a resolution

Amendment

48a. Highlights that women's participation in CSDP missions contributes to the effectiveness of the mission and is a driver of the EU's credibility as a proponent of equal rights for women and men worldwide; calls for meaningful gender mainstreaming in the formulation of the EU CSDP, notably via a better gender balance in the personnel and leadership of CSDP missions and operations and specific training of the personnel deployed; welcomes the fact that all civilian CSDP missions have now appointed a gender adviser and calls on the military CSDP missions to do the same; encourages EU Member States to put forward women as candidates for existing vacancies; calls for all EU deployed military and civilian personnel to be sufficiently trained on gender equality and the implementation of UNSCR 1325 on Women, Peace and Security, and specifically on how to integrate a gender perspective into their tasks; regrets that the number of women working in CSDP missions and especially in military operations remains very low; urges the EEAS to promote the need for a concrete target for increasing the number of women in the EU's crisis management missions and operations; urges the Member States to look at ways to strengthen recruitment and retention policies and promote women's participation in peacebuilding and peacekeeping missions; stresses the need to include a new EU budget line that would finance the position of gender advisers in military CSDP missions;

Amendment

51a. Will pay particular attention to ensuring that the special nature of military affairs is better reflected in

European Union law; to that end: recalls that the European Parliament is in favour of conserving military status, which meets the very specific requirements of the military profession and constitutes the guarantee of the effectiveness of the armed forces in each of the Member States; calls for the intelligence services' intervention capacities to be preserved, as these services cannot carry out their task of protecting national security without retaining access to connection data provided in full, as a preventive measure, for a sufficient period of time and under the supervision of the national courts and the ECHR ; notes the adoption of the Council's general approach on the Single European Sky package; recalls the need to conserve the Member States' sovereignty and Europe's armed forces' freedom to act; recalls, in respect of the provision of services, the national security imperatives relating to access, reliability and integrity of data and insists that the introduction of military safeguard clauses in the Regulation should make it possible to meet this twofold challenge;
