Press Release
Syrian Coalition
June 5, 2014

The final chapter of the Assad regime's farce is complete. Assad won the election that the majority of the Syrians boycotted. Students and regime employees were threatened and forced to take part in the charade to give this gimmick a sense of reality. More than 9 million internally displaced people and refugees were unable to express their will.

The Syrian Coalition reaffirms the election is illegal and illegitimate and it does not in any way represent the Syrian people. It is vital that support to the mainstream opposition is ramped up to tip the balance on the ground. Assad must be forced to accept international agreements forming the basis of a political settlement in Syria, including the Geneva Communiqué. The Syrian people are determined to continue the struggle to achieve their legitimate demands for freedom, justice, and democracy.

May our wounded recover, our detainees be free, and our fallen heroes rest in peace.

Long live Syria and its people, free and with honor.
