The Syrian Coalition highly praises the Free Syrian Army groups for the liberation of the town of Jarablos from the ISIS terrorist organization. FSA fighters on Wednesday launched an offensive to capture the town close to the Turkish border.

The FSA groups managed to take the town in around 12 hours, after which the FSA fighters set to clear the town from the mines and IEDs planted by ISIS militants.

The Coalition stresses that the Syrian revolution, with all its political, military and revolutionary forces, will continue to fight terrorism in all its forms. It calls on the brotherly and friendly countries as well as the international community to step up support for the FSA to defeat the terrorist organizations and their sponsors, led by the Assad regime as it is the key player in the spread of terror, chaos, and destruction in Syria.

The Coalition also calls on the FSA groups to protect civilians and ensure their return to their homes in Jarablos. It calls on the Syrian interim government to expeditiously restore services and re-operate public institutions so that civilian life can be restored in the town.

May our wounded recover, our detainees be free, and our fallen heroes rest in peace.
Long live Syria and its people, free and with honor.
